

Our country's economy is based upon a free market. One group should not have more rights than another. The radio broadcasters should be able to compete while offering free information available to the consumer. If they think that they can not compete with a company offering a more expensive like service - the government does not have the right to protect that old style of service offering into the marketplace. Let the people (or market) decide - not the government.